

QUO VADIS

Introduction

Quo Vadis, one of the worlds leading Lighting System Integrators and Technical Service Providers, creates the most technically advanced control systems available, by integrating commercial lighting control and home automation products from the worlds leading manufacturers.

Working in full co-operation with all leading Architects, Mechanical & Electrical Consultants, Interior Designers and Lighting Designers, Quo Vadis can specify, supply, maintain and technically support the most comprehensive lighting systems available.

Solutions are all application specific, ensuring that end users get elegant and convenient control of both their working and living environments. Whether it be to control lighting, security or complete home automation systems, Quo Vadis have the answers.

Harnessing cutting edge technology offers customers the flexibility of using simple wall panels, touch-screen panels or even the internet to monitor and control residential and commercial premises, from home or abroad.

Quo Vadis complements the quality of the products used in each application, with the quality of its own dedicated after-sales technical services, with on-site support maintained by our team of highly skilled technicians.

Quo Vadis, for your total lighting solutions.

TOTAL LIGHTING SOLUTIONS

Residential

The fully integrated home offers the ultimate in whole home control solutions. Homeowners, who usefully exploit the affordable technologies of today, will significantly benefit in the future, with the whole home integration of all lighting, heating, home theatre, multi room audio and security into one easy to use package.

All equipment integrated within the system can be controlled locally, on easy to use wall mounted panels, with high resolution touch screen control panels or via the internet using the Quo Vadis website.

When fully integrated with home theatre systems, sophisticated home control systems give homeowners the ability to activate their entertainment system, turn the plasma screen on, close the blinds and dim the lighting to pre-set viewing levels, all from the touch of a single button.

Should you integrate the same touch screen control system with your security access system, when you have a visitor, the security cameras will portray a real-time image of them on the same screen, allowing you to pause the film to let them in or simply open your door using one of the other virtual buttons.

The same principle applies if worried parents wish to keep a watchful eye on baby's bedroom, either whilst they are in the same house or whilst they are away.

Quo Vadis solutions are simply endless.
